DAVID HINTZE INDICTED FOR AUTO DEATH

...ges Second Degree Manslaughter Charge for Hit, Skip Killing of Miss Seckel.

GRAND JURY REPORTS

...st Indictment Under New Law; Bills Returned Against Five Other Persons.

Indictments were returned ... persons by the grand ... common pleas court this ..., including two counts ... David Hintze, 45, of 258 ... street as a result of the traf... death of Miss Gertrude Seckel ... night of April 18.

... was charged with second ... manslaughter and leaving ... scene of an accident.

... degree manslaughter carried a less severe penalty than ... according to Prosecuting Attorney Paul D. Michel. The penalty for conviction is a fine not to exceed $500 and a ... of from 30 days to six months in the county jail or workhouse, or both, or a term of from ... to 20 years in the penitentiary. ... manslaughter penalty is a ... of from one to 20 years ... penitentiary.

Under New Law

The law providing for second degree manslaughter became effective within the last year, the prosecutor said. The Hintze case is the first to be brought in Marion county.

It relates only to traffic deaths and covers the "unlawful and unintentional killing of another while violating a statute relating to traffic regulation."

Hintze, for 10 years a city employe, has been held in county jail, unable to raise the $2,000 set by Judge William R. Martin. He was arrested at his home shortly after the accident when state highway patrolmen followed a trail of motor oil from the scene of the accident on East Center street to the Hintze garage.

Other Indictments

Two indictments were returned against William S. Patterson, charging him with issuing checks without funds.

Other indictments were returned against Robert Foster, charged with breaking and entering; Randy McGinty, first count rape and second count of incest; and E. Keck, charged with rape; and Pierre Hafilck, charged with non-support of his minor children.

Foster's indictment was in connection with burglary of the Marty ... shop on West Center street.

The grand jury took no action in the case of Charles Davis, alias ... W. Williams, charged with stealing into the residence of ... Geraldine Hord of Bradford ... Investigation following his arrest on the night of April 18 revealed that Davis' correct name is John B. Lowry and that he is an escaped prisoner from the North Carolina state prison at Raleigh. He was returned to Raleigh several days ago to complete a term of from 10 to 25 years for burglary.

The grand jury also ignored charges of automobile theft against Jack Shuster and operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent against Thomas McDaniel.

Ten Cases Considered

The report of the grand jury to Judge Hector S. Young showed that 16 cases were considered, in which seven indictments were returned and three cases ignored. Thirty-five witnesses were examined in the three days the jury was in session.

The jurors reported they had made the customary inspection of the county jail and had found it to be in a clean and sanitary condition. Proper discipline of prisoners is being maintained by Sheriff ... Miller the jury reported. ... Smallwood was foreman of the jury.

The grand jury also reported that an inspection had been made of the women's rest room in the court house and that it was found in an unsanitary condition. A recommendation was made that the proper officials act to see that the quarters are made clean and sanitary.

BORAH AT ADA TALKS TO 2,500

Strikes at "Monopoly, Price-Fixing and Favorite Son" Primary Plan.

MARION GROUP ATTENDS

Says He "Thinks He'll Be Nominated"; Calls for Restoring Purchasing Power.

Special to The Star

ADA, O., May 7—Urging the Republican party to "crush monopoly and do away with price fixing" and continuing his criticism of the "favorite son" plan, Sen. William E. Borah brought his drive for the presidency into north central Ohio last night with an address before an audience of nearly 2,500 at Ada.

The veteran Idaho senator spoke at Lehr Memorial hall, a part of Ohio Northern university. Delegations from Marion and nearby counties were in the crowd that jammed the auditorium. French Crow of Marion, and Miles McLaughlin of Nevada, Republican candidates for Eighth district congressmen, were among local and state candidates who were introduced and spoke briefly.

Sen. Borah will speak at Toledo tonight.

O. E. Dickason, chairman of the Ada Young Republican club, introduced the speaker.

Commenting on the opposition to his candidacy by "reactionary forces" within the Republican party," Borah declared, "They are fighting me because I am opposed to monopoly and its power to fix prices upon 120,000,000 people." I am not fighting independent and legitimate business, he said. "Rather I am fighting for legitimate business and for the 50,000,000 people in America who now have only the bare necessities of life and who have a right to live and enjoy life according to decent American stands of living."

Hits "Price Fixing"

"Why are the DuPonts, the Standard Oil Co. and other gigantic corporations contributing their money against my campaign?" the Idahoan asked. "Because they know what I will do to their monopolistic practices if am elected to the presidency." The senator declared that 80 per cent of the things that go into the home, either in food supplies or clothing, are under control of a "price fixing power."

Speaking with the fire and ardor for which he is noted Borah launched an attack on Walter Brown, Republican national com-

U. S. MANUFACTURERS DENOUNCE TAX BILL

Label Legislation New Step Toward Government Control of Industries.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—The administratin tax bill was attacked by the National Association of Manufacturers today as "a form of deliberate national economic planning" and a "further step towards government regulation and regimentation of business."

The association's view was expressed to the senate finance committee by Noel Sargent, its economist and secretary.

Contending that the proposal for taxing undistributed corporate profits also would intensify booms and depressions and promote monopoly, Sargent proposed instead the creation of a special committee representing government and industry to submit recommendations for revenue legislation at the next session of congress.

The Manufacturers association levied its heaviest fire at the tax bill, as the finance committee was rushing toward the close of hearings, Chairman Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, has set the windup for tomorrow.

Earlier today spokesmen for Canadian investors, American tanners and others had opposed various provisions in the bill.

STATE FINISHES IN MANSFIELD MURDER TRIAL

Defendant's Uncle Testifies After Prosecution Hears Gun Expert's Story.

SHOOTING DISTANCE CITED

Ballistic Authority Says Pistol Was Held More Than Foot from Girl's Body.

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., May 7—The prosecution rested today in its attempt to send Charles Wilson, 23-year-old electrician, to the electric chair for the slaying of his pretty sweetheart, Jean Moorhead.

D. F. Cowles, ballistic expert of the Cleveland police department, the last prosecution witness, completed his testimony at 9:40 a. m. and was followed by the first defense witness, Howard Wilson of Chicago, uncle of the accused slayer.

Charged with Killing

Wilson seemingly recovered from his tearful collapse in the courtroom late yesterday, is charged with firing three shots into the socially prominent girl's body last April 4 as she sat in an automobile with Haskell Smith, 21.

The defense, seeking to have the first degree murder charge reduced to manslaughtr, has said it would show that the youth's mental condition prompted the killing.

Cowles testified that the death gun was held more than a foot away when the bullets were discharged.

He said that the $1 pearl-handled pistol which Wilson used apparently had been oiled a short time before the shooting and that the cartridges were fairly new.

Death Threat Cited

A jury of 11 men and one woman heard yesterday one witness quote Wilson as saying he would kill Jean if he ever found her with another boy.

Howard Wilson, formerly a Mansfield resident, was called as a character witness.

The defense indicated it probably would finish its testimony today by putting the defendant on the stand. He broke down in court when the garments the girl wore the night she was killed were shown the jury.

Howard Wilson testified that his nephew told him not to lease a house near Mansfield "too long, because tootsie and I may want to get married."

Legal Tilt Ensues

During direct examination of Wilson, a sharp tilt broke out between William L. Day, defense attorney, and Special Prosecutor George H. Bleicker during which the jury was excused.

The defense sought to show that the association of young Wilson with the girl may have prompted mental condition that caused the shooting. A similar argument occurred yesterday.

Presiding Judge C. H. Huston granted admission of testimony to show the association between the young people, but said he would not permit any attempt to show a mental condition.

"When did he first tell you he wanted to marry Jean?" Bleicker asked Howard Wilson, under cross-examination.

"Sometime last summer. In July," was the reply.

Asks About Shooting

The defense called Jack McNamara, newspaper solicitor, as its second witness. He testified yesterday that before taking a ride with Charles Wilson the night of the killing he asked him if there was going to be "any of that funny shooting business."

Day called McNamara to explain that portion of his testimony.

McNamara said Wilson also carried the gun about in his car and liked to shoot and that on one occasion got out of the car and started firing into the air for no apparent reason, two weeks before the shooting.

Two spectators were arrested for contempt of court at the noon recess when they failed to get out of the corridors quickly enough to permit the jury to leave the courtroom.

Judge Huston fined Mrs. Ralph Kurshfield of Mansfield and Carl Swadener of Bellville $5 each.

The defense planned to call Wilson's parents, Jeffe Beer, high school principal, C. A. Waltz, former superintendent of schools, and several other character witnesses during the afternoon.

His Mother In Court

The accused youth's mother, who was absent from early sessions of the trial, appeared in court this morning for the first time.

She wept during part of Cowles' testimony and when clothing of the slain girl was shown she left the courtroom. Later in the morning she returned. It was expected she would be called as a defense witness this afternoon.

Among the character witnesses heard this morning were C. L. Hartenfels, Jacob F. Balliet, Richard Oberlin and his father, W. R. Oberlin, all of Mansfield, and Mrs. Hazel Leapley and Miss Helen Leapley of Crestline. The latter said she had stayed at the Wilson home a short time and had overheard the accused youth mention marriage plans.

Arthur Schonauer, 21, of Mansfield, who worked at an electrical plant here with the accused, startled a courtroom already tens...

City Must Cut Corners Even With 3.2 Mill Levy

Additional Income Won't Place Marion on Easy Street, but Help Solve Problem, Mayor Tells C. of C.

The 3.2-mill levy is not a proposal that would put the city on easy street if approved by Marion voters on May 12. Instead, it is a request which, if granted, still will leave the administration obligated to spend $60,000 less money in each of the years 1936 and 1937 than was spent to operate municipal government in 1935, Mayor Frederick C. Smith told members of the Chamber of Commerce at a dinner meeting last night in Hotel Marion.

The mayor briefly reviewed the financial position of the city as he and his administration found it the first of this year, the economies that have been effected and the administration's reasons for submitting the special two-year levy, which would raise approximately $175,000 in 1936 and 1937, to the voters.

On Jan. 1, 1930, the administration went into office confronted by an $80,000 operating deficit for 1935 while the income in sight for the year was not sufficient to pay operating requirements on the 1935 basis, let alone wipe out the deficit, Mayor Smith said.

"You will remember this administration pledged itself to balance the budget," he continued. "You can't say the budget is balanced unless provision is made for the $80,000 deficit, so we regarded the operating debt as part of our problem.

"In approaching it, we spent the first two months cutting down expenses. We worked hard and we cut expenses to the bone. Even so, we couldn't provide for contractual obligations in full although we set up a 45 per cent pay cut for officials and employes in an effort to do so.

Solution To Problem

"After we had made drastic savings and cut expenses to the bone, we sought a plan to meet contractual obligations, pay the deficit and restore part of the pay cut which we felt was unreasonable. The 3.2-mill levy is the proposal

ANNOUNCE OPENINGS FOR CCC APPLICANTS

Places Available for at Least 30 from Marion County Relief Families.

Marion county FERA officials notified today that civilian conservation corps enrollments have been reopened in this county. Immediately launched an effort to place at least 30 young men in CCC camps by the new deadline, May 15.

The word was received by relief officials as an unexpected opportunity for large families on relief or WPA or those classed as "near relief" cases to help support themselves. The previous deadline for enrollments was April 15.

Emphasizing the importance of this development, relief officials said a 22 per cent reduction in direct relief allowances probably will have to be made in June as compared with May and that still further reductions will be necessary in July. Thus, unless large families on relief, WPA or "near relief" are able to place one of the members in a CCC camp, they may face difficult problems.

Mrs. Ernestine Widemann, in charge of CCC enrollments for this county, said this morning she would like to have 50 prospective members signed up by the deadline. She urged prospective applicants to call at relief headquarters on South State street Friday, Saturday or Monday.

Failure of other areas to fill their CCC quotas in recent weeks brought the opportunity for this county to send more youths to camp, she said. The young men earn $30 a month in camps keeping $5 for themselves and sending the remaining $25 to their families. The age limits are 17 to 28 years.

STATE MUSIC MEETING ENDS

Dr. John Samuel of Baldwin-Wallace Elected President of Association This Morning.

NEXT MEET IN CLEVELAND

Entire Slate of Cleveland Officers Named; Closing Session This Afternoon.

A Cleveland man, Dr. John Samuel, head of the voice department at Baldwin-Wallace college at Berea, was chosen president of the Ohio State Music Teachers' association and Cleveland was selected for the 1937 convention at this morning's session of the three-day convention of the association.

Chosen with Dr. Samuel, who is a former president of the Cleveland Men's Music Teachers' association, are the following officers, all from Cleveland: Harold Hannah, first vice president; Mrs. Charles Schneider, second vice president; Dr. Albert Riemenschneider, Mrs. Harry Valentine and Mrs. Frances Kortheuer, directors. Harm Harms of Columbus, is the permanent secretary and treasurer of the organization.

Question Carried Over

Definite action on the question of the certification of the music teacher, which had been designated as the convention theme and on which some action was expected to be taken at this meeting, was carried over until the next convention in order to give the members more time to investigate the measure and also to allow the committee of 13, headed by H. W. Hannah of Cleveland as chairman, more time to prepare a more elaborate analysis of the proposal from a favorable and unfavorable standpoint.

Although the certification proposal was not drafted in definite form for presentation to the convention, it provides for a classification of teachers on a basis of qualification. Adoption of the plan would result in the licensing of teachers by the state or some board.

Indorsement of the certification of the music teacher in some form, was voiced in the revised constitution accepted for study preparatory to being voted on at the Cleveland convention.

Discussions of the proposal both this morning and at the certification luncheon yesterday brought out conflicting ideas regarding the measure. Whether the music teacher will be certified by classification of licensing was the paramount issue in the discussion, the former through the establishing of a board set up as an advisory organization or the latter through state legislature.

Oberlin Musicians

Completing the morning session was a program and demonstration of woodwind music by the Oberlin Conservatory with George Waln as director.

The closing session this afternoon was held in the First Presbyterian church. Highlights of the program were a round table forum conducted by Alberto Bimboni of New York City, opera coach and director at the Juilliard School of New York, and Dr. John A. Hoffman, dean of the Cincinnati Con-

$1,425,000,000 Relief Bill Goes To House Floor

Reported as Part of $2,364,229,712 Deficiency Plan Including Security Funds.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—A $2,364,229,712 deficiency appropriation bill carrying $1,425,000,000 for relief went to the house floor today for a showdown fight over WPA policies.

The money bill was reported by the appropriations committee with $725,000,000 of the $1,500,000,000 originally asked by President Roosevelt for continuing work relief activities shifted to the civilian conservation corps. This made a $388,000,000 total for that agency, a fund designed to keep the authorized strength of the corps up to $350,000 and provide an average of 2,086 camps in the nine-month period until March 31, 1937.

Includes Security Funds

Other major items in the last big measure to be cleared before adjournment were $158,631,860 for the social security program, $65,550,000 for public buildings and $39,900,000 for the Tennessee valley authority.

The relief money was allowed by the committee subject to maximum limitations on specified classes of expenditures, but with a 15 per cent leeway permitted between classes. Republican members of the committee contended this nullified any actual efforts at limitation and the minority raised a concerted demand that WPA be dismantled and replaced with a system of federal grants to states.

But administration leaders expressed confidence the bill as reported would pass the house this week or early next.

Want Politics Taken Out

The Republican views were expressed after a caucus of about 50 minutes of the house minority last night. Made public by Rep. Snell of New York, the platform asked divorcement of relief from political control."

Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, had told the committee that the full $1,500,000,000 would be insufficient and a new allowance would have to be asked next January if private employment did not pick up. He had estimated a billion and a half would enable WPA to provide work for an average of 2,000,000 persons compared with the March peak of 3,050,000.

Explaining that past experience made it possible "to determine in advance the broad proportions of each general type of project which is likely to be chosen by the communities during the coming fiscal year," the committee added quickly that the needs of states and communities undoubtedly would vary somewhat and consequently the 15 per cent leeway was considered advisable.

Italy Will Annex Beaten Ethiopia Saturday Night

Action at Rome, Sources Believe, Will Thwart Intervention by League.

By The Associated Press

A Saturday night decree of total annexation for conquered Ethiopia was predicted by well informed sources in Rome today—a fait accompli for presentation to Monday's League of Nations council meeting at Geneva.

These sources said the grand Fascist council and the Italian cabinet, meeting within a half hour on Saturday night, would effect the decree-law annexing all of Haile Selassie's beaten empire.

This accomplished fact, the Italians said, would permit of no league discussion.

Today, the Stefani (Italian) News Agency reported, the Fascist army of occupation took complete charge of the French-owned Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad in Ethiopia, from the negus' former capital to the boundary of French Somaliland.

By order of their military commander, troops took over all traffic on the narrow gauge line and restored normal service, Stefani reported.

The railroad is Ethiopia's only modern public carrier and the only modern egress from Addis Ababa to the sea.

Simultaneously, Italy's armies all but completed the subjugation of southern Ethiopia with the capture of the important town of Jijiga, and pressed into service Haile Selassie's own imperial police to "mop up" Northern Addis Ababa.

Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, hard-hitting veteran of colonial wars, landed at Jijiga in an airplane after his motorized troops, had seized the town without resistance.

Now only Harar, "garden city" of Ethiopia, remains to be seized by the Fascists. Then a few kilometers northwest of Jijiga and its fall was considered only a matter of days.

Shows "Little Resistance" When Surprised in Apartment with Alleged Wife.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., May 7 — J. Edgar Hoover, federal bureau of investigation chief, announced here that Harry Campbell, last of the Alvin Karpis gang, a woman described as his wife and Sam Coker, a minor gangland figure, were captured by federal agents early today at Toledo, O.

Hoover said the capture was effected without the firing of a shot. Campbell was taken to St. Paul, Minn., by airplane to face charges in the Edward Bremer kidnaping, he said.

Campbell was wanted on charges of participating in the kidnaping of Bremer, and in connection with a $40,000 machine gun mail train holdup at Garrettsville, O.

Harry Campbell

Hoover termed a "little resistance" when the agents apprehended him, Hoover said.

Federal men surprised Campbell and the woman in a Toledo apartment.

On Campbell's person, the agents found a .45 caliber revolver and a quantity of ammunition, Hoover said.

Agents said the girl claimed to have married Campbell at Bowling Green, O., in 1935. She gave her age as 19 years.

Hoover said that when Karpis and other members of the former Barker-Karpis gang escaped from a trap here in 1931 "they were tipped off by two Cleveland politicians and we are now investigating every detail of this angle."

The bureau chief said members of the Karpis gang had fake lifting and finger-print operations performed by a Cleveland surgeon.

"The doctor probably is dead now," Hoover said. "We have reason to believe he was killed after performing the operations. We believe his body was dumped into Lake Erie."

Hoover said that Campbell was married under the name of "Robert Miller" and that his wife did not know anything of his criminal career. She probably will be released, he said.

Hoover said Coker probably will be held for Oklahoma authorities as a parole violator where an unfinished 30-year sentance for bank robbery still stands against him.

Campbell's capture came less than a week after that of Karpis, who bore the label of "public enemy No. 1." Karpis was taken in similar manner without gunfire in a fashionable New Orleans residential district.

Karpis became known nationally after federal agents killed Kate "Ma" Barker and her son, Fred, in a gun battle in Florida.

Campbell and Karpis fled north in a stolen automobile, shot their way out of an Atlantic City hotel in a battle with police and escaped to the middle west after abducting a Pennsylvania doctor to obtain his automobile.

Campbell was charged, together with Karpis and Fred Hunter, taken with the former in New Orleans, with a $46,000 machine gun mail train robbery last Nov. 7, at Garrettsville, O.

The federal man surrounded the two-story apartment building where Campbell was hiding out. Hoover refused to say how many men were in the raiding party. Campbell and his wife were seized as they emerged from the building, just at daybreak. Campbell scuffled slightly but was covered and overpowered, Hoover said.

Coker, 40, was taken a half hour later at another hideout not far away.

VIEWS ON TAXES

Editor of The Star: I saw in Friday's Star where Dr. Mahla expressed himself as an interested taxpayer.

Poor people have held their houses since the depression, with little or nothing, and now when we can get enough to pay the rate of taxes we have now they are trying to put on a levy and raise them on every thousand.

Why not issue bonds as they did in past years and leave our taxes as they are, or do they want us to lose our homes? Wake up, Mr. Taxpayer before it is too late.

The small per cent of a mill that was for firemen's and policemen's pensions was done away with but they are trying to put many times more on us. What will we do with these older men? Put them on relief after serving 25 straight years and endangering their lives for you and me?

Get things going and find some way to raise money so these strangers that are brought in to take our taxpayers' positions can pay their share, and not put it all on the poor taxpayer.

Leave the hospital the way it is.

The Stars Say--

For Friday, May 8

A VERY lively and interesting day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual configurations, although it may not be presaged as a gratifying or altogether progressive state of affairs. There is an element of confusion, perplexity, doubt and probably deception or fraud by means of schemes, plots or connivance. It would be well to be on guard against all such subterfuges and treacheries.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather lively and interesting year, with much stirring, but it will call for much vigilance against fraud, trickery, distortion and confusion. An undercurrent of the sinister and subtle permeates affairs and calls for much wariness. Be cautious in writing and signing correspondence, writings and documents, as these leave loopholes for misconstruction and legal trouble.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Gastritis.

Many of my older readers will recall the time when "Fletcherism" was a popular fad. This idea was advanced by Horace Fletcher who believed that many ailments are caused by insufficient chewing of the food. He advised thorough mastication of all solids and the taking of liquids by sips.

Though Fletcherism is no longer discussed, all experts are agreed that incomplete chewing of food leaves too much for the stomach to do. In consequence the digestive organs rebel and disturbances result.

Gastritis, inflammation of the stomach, is a common disorder. As a matter of fact, many cases can be traced to faulty eating habits.

The rapid swallowing of coarse and uncooked foods, the excessive use of alcoholic beverages, and taking large quantities of ice cold water—all these are unwise practices. Of course, this form of inflammation may result from some toxin or poison circulating within the system. Infected teeth and tonsils may supply the germs which set up gastritis. It sometimes accompanies such diseases as influenza, pneumonia, measles and scarlet fever.

Please bear in mind that persons who are careless in their eating habits are often victims of gastritis. Irregular eating, faulty chewing of food, and the excessive use of condiments, fried or greasy foods, are common factors having to do with gastritis.

The sufferer from gastritis first notices a sour taste in the mouth, or excessive gas formation after meals. Pretty soon there will be persistent heartburn, indigestion and other gastric disturbances. At times the irritation may be so severe as to lead to nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

Gastritis in itself is not a dangerous ailment, but the neglect of it may lead to serious disturbances. The victim suffers from loss of appetite, failure of nutrition and general lowering of the resistance of the body against infections. Sooner or later this condition is followed by some other disturbance which could have been easily thrown off if he had not suffered from gastritis.

Not every person who has these symptoms is necessarily suffering from gastritis. They are signs which may be due to some other disturbance. For this reason it is wise to consult your doctor when the distress continues. He will determine the cause.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert

By The Associated Press

If the Republicans could be said to have a dowager-queen that person might be Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, for years vice-chairman of the party's national committee.

In the campaigns of 1924 and 1925 she directed the women's Republican clubs which she had helped organize in the decade before. Furthermore, she was national committeewoman and state vicechairman for her party in her home state of Kentucky.

She stepped down from the director's post in the women's division for this campaign, content to offer her advice on speeches, speakers and appointments.

She inherited her political interests as well as her directorship in a rich manufacturing concern from her husband.

How's Business?

CAPITAL FLOWS SLOWLY INTO NATION'S INDUSTRY AS BANK DEPOSITS RISE

This is the fourth in a series of six articles on the progress of economic recovery.

By CHARLES A. JAMES
(Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK—Billions in bank deposits and in security values have been piling up steadily during the last three years forming a huge reservoir of capital to finance recovery.

Concurrently, interest rates have fallen in some instances to the lowest levels on record.

But while dollars are plentiful and cheap new capital and new credit has not yet started to flow actively into industry.

Nevertheless latest statistics show clearly that the flow is expanding and the potential supply is so great that the use of exercising the government's new powers to control credit and speculation to guard against an inflationary speculative crash has been stressed by some leaders in Washington and Wall street.

New Capital Raised

New capital raised by the issue of new securities in Wall street in the first quarter of this year amounted to $390,000,000 according to the tabulation of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle. This was more than treble the volume raised in the same period of 1933 but only about one-eighth of the total in the same months of 1929.

The issuance of new corporate securities to replace outstanding issues to take advantage of the current low interest rates rather than to raise new money has been the chief occupation of the investment bankers recently. Some $1,000,000,000 of refunding issues were floated in the first quarter of this year compared with only $85,000,000 in the same months of 1935.

Economists point out that a refunding movement of this character has frequently preceded a big flow of new capital issues.

Stock Prices Up

With the revival in corporation earnings share prices in the New York Stock Exchange have more than trebled since their low of 1932. The total quoted value of all shares listed in the Exchange was recently calculated at $61,670,000,000 compared with the depression bottom of $15,600,000,000.

The total quoted value of all bonds listed in the Exchange was placed as of last April 1 at $41,807,142,328 or more than $11,000,000,000 above the 1932 low.

The mounting of billions of bank deposits likewise is shown in the statistics. The latest tabulation of deposits of all banks while several months old shows a total of $45,766,000,000 or $7,768,000,000 above the level of 1933.

Banks Have Billions

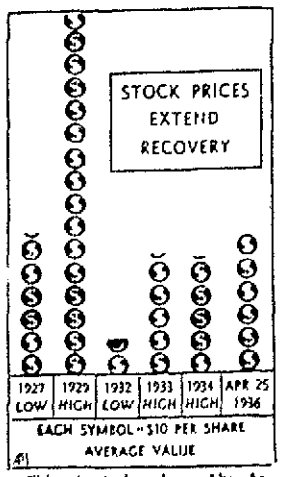
The lending power of the banks has reached unprecedented levels. The billions of the reserve Banks have never have expanded but slowly. This is attributed to a number of causes including the fact that in the early phases of recovery many old loans which were due during the bad years are liquidated and thus end to offer new ones.

One week reporting members banks of the Reserve system which account for about two-thirds of the nation's total commercial bank loans only about $1,000,000,000 since the total touched bottom. This compares with a drop in such loans of some $5,000,000,000 during the downward swing of the cycle.

Expansion Held Near

Restoration of billions of bank funds and investment assets to the financial structure of the nation in the last three years lead most economists to the conclusion that financial America is now prepared to undertake a big job of expansion. Improvement and rebuilding perhaps actually is starting to do it.

In view of the new banking and security legislation many hope that the next big financial movement will be kept from the excesses of the last one.



This chart based on the Associated Press average of 60 stocks indicates the major changes that have taken place in the share markets in the last decade. Stock prices are currently two and one-half times their 1932 low and near the 1927 level but more than 60 per cent under the 1929 high.

In the fifth article Frederick R. Gardiner of the Washington staff of The Associated Press will discuss the part government spending has played in recovery.)

Red Flag Taken from Staff Atop Supreme Court

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7 — An amazed capital awoke today to find the red flag of communism flying over the huge marble temple of the supreme court of the United States.

Apparently raised in the night by a prankster the fluttering emblem struck consternation into the ranks of the supreme court guard picked men assigned to protect the dignity of the nation's highest tribunal.

Frantically the guard and a big detachment of metropolitan police struggled for an hour and a half to get the flaming emblem down but without success.

Finally a fireman mounted a lofty extension ladder. Swaying precariously he touched the flag with a gasoline torch tied to the end of a long pole. The emblem burst into flames and was destroyed.

The government began a wide hunt for the prankster who had raised the banner bearing the hammer and sickle. Authorities had their suspicions he might hail from Harvard university.

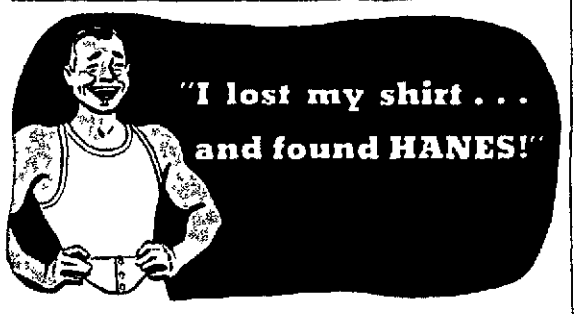
The incident provided much merriment to a crowd of early morning passersby who gathered at the scene offering advice and philosophic comment.

At the base of the pole was found a copy of the Lampoon Harvard university's humorous magazine. It contained an article entitled down with capitalism.

PLAN HOMECOMING AT LINN SCHOOL

A homecoming will be held at the Linn school three miles north of Marion on the Bucyrus road on Friday May 15. A program of recitations, plays and music will be given. Former pupils, teachers and friends have been invited to join the entertainment and picnic supper which will be served at 6:30. Miss Ruth Drollinger is teacher at the school.

Of German invention is an electric alarm that sounds at a distant point when water in a bath tub or a liquid in an industrial tank reaches a desired level.



"I could kick myself when I think how I used to shell out for an undershirt. Paying fancy prices, because I thought they wouldn't be comfortable—thought they wouldn't wear—unless I threw the bank roll for a terrific loss.

But like a lot of others I lost my shirt in the late depression. And that's how I found HANES. I had to cut down expenses so I started buying HANES for thirty-five and fifty cents apiece. And I want to say—you never had a sweller shirt on your back! They're light. They're cool. And HANES knits them with plenty of snap so they hug right up to your skin as comfortable as you'd want. And look how long a HANES Shirt is. You can tuck it way down in your shorts so it won't creep up at your waist. Sure . . . I lost my shirt. But I've got some sense in my head and some cents in my pocket today!"

CHARMER NABS DEADLY SNAKES

Cages 12 Poisonous Reptiles in Montreal Hotel Room.

By United Press

MONTREAL, May 7—Florette [illegible], snake charmer, [illegible] room filled with 12 [illegible] reptiles today [illegible] put them back [illegible].

[illegible] caused a panic that [illegible] adder bit Edward [illegible], owner of a Schriever, [illegible], who had been [illegible] reptiles to make [illegible] them. Smith will [illegible] the venom dissipates [illegible] reaches the heart.

[illegible] cobras, rattlers [illegible] in his collection. He [illegible] insisted that he was [illegible] to snake bite and had [illegible] to open his arteries [illegible] feed his pets to the snakes. [illegible] he was treating an [illegible] for an ailment when the [illegible] struck.

Police called in Miss Zoda, friend of Smith. Cautiously Miss [illegible] pushed open the door in the room at the Alpine hotel. Quickly [illegible] summed it and turned away [illegible].

She had been able to count only seven snakes, and she knew Smith had 12 in his collection. Panic [illegible] Police scaled the hotel [illegible] door and ordered everybody [illegible] of the Alpine. The street outside was blocked off.

"I wouldn't dare go into that room," Miss Zoda told police. "They are just as wild and dangerous as any snakes in the world."

A conference was held and it was decided to try to kill the snakes with poison gas.

Then Miss Zoda, collecting her nerves, volunteered to try again. When at last she came out she said she had found all 12 of the snakes. She took them carefully, one by one, and put them in their cages, not knowing when another deadly reptile would crawl up behind her and strike.

She said she used a forked stick to capture the snakes and tied the neck of each with a leather thong. Miss Zoda added that Smith had been bitten by a species of the adder—ordinarily not a dangerous snake. This one, however, had a "fungus growth in its mouth" which made it deadly.

Flowers For The Experts

The world-famed experts on European affairs have been confounded by the defiance of Mussolini's colonial adventure. Their predictions have been left trailing and bug-eyed, but never a more contrite aggregation has had to eat under more embarrassing circumstances. The sound of laughter which makes their plight almost unendurable comes unquestionably from Rome.

In the coming weeks experts will explain in meticulous detail just what happened why it happened and what is going to happen next. There will be plenty of time for complete understanding. In the meantime what the world wants to know is how the supposed experts slipped up so completely on virtually everything pertaining to the invasion of Ethiopia.

They said it couldn't be done in the time Italy had said it would be done. They said Italy couldn't stand the financial strain of trying to perform such a large task in so short a time. They said economic sanctions would upset Italian plans. They predicted Premier Mussolini would run into trouble at home before his soldiers reached Addis Ababa. They said just about everything they could think of to say and it was all wrong.

All that remains now is to discover that Ethiopia is a land of milk and honey with a vacation climate and the reversal of expert information will be complete.

No Monopoly On Virtue

In speaking before a Stark county Democratic rally Monday night, Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, stated his case vigorously but several times referred to forces of intrenched greed and left the impression that social virtue was a monopoly of his own party.

One would have to be naive to believe that every business man at all times is motivated by the highest ethical principles but one would have to be blind to all reason and sense to accept the other extreme so often implied by Democratic speakers—that all business men are rogues devoid of social vision.

It was encouraging the other day to hear Lewis H. Brown, executive of Johns Manville corporation, declare that business leaders are as much in favor of some avowed new deal aims as is the average citizen. No business man would willingly let people starve. No business man can fail to be disturbed by the stubbornness with which unemployment figures keep above the ten million mark.

But as Mr. Brown emphasized business men may well disagree as to the method by which ideals can be translated into practice. Mainly they choose to rely upon the same slow, practical processes of orderly development and growth that built up the wealth of this country. They have learned to their cost in the past as well as present that tops of reform can prove to be monkey wrenches of destruction if thrown enthusiastically but madly into economic machinery.

Increasingly as campaign fervor waxes hottest new deal spokesmen will claim the mantle of social virtue for their party. At such times it will be well to remember that business men for economic as well as humanitarian reasons are also vitally concerned about the welfare of the man in the street.

Marching Onward.

By an overwhelming majority the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has approved a proposed merger with the Methodist Episcopal church South and the Methodist Protestant church. The proposal has yet to be voted upon by the two last groups—the southern Methodists do not convene until 1938—but it is expected that approval will be granted readily thus giving the united Methodist body a total of more than 8,000,000 members. That would be by far the largest unit of American Protestantism.

The merger will heal wounds more than a century old. It was in 1830 that a group of dissenters broke from the main body of Methodism and established their own organization under the name of Methodist Protestant. The united church at that time had vanished from the original impetus given it by two Irish disciples of John Wesley, Philip Embury and Robert Strawbridge, who came to the United States in the 1760's to carry the torch of the new evangelism which was sweeping across Europe.

In 1846 another breach which will be obliterated by the union occurred. It was then that the Methodist Episcopal church South established itself when friction over

As Marion [illegible] nation ... It happens ... [illegible] Maryland as go ... Republican.

Last Monday Maryland went to the polls and voted in the state primary. They did not go Republican but they did [illegible] and Democrats alike voted against President Roosevelt.

Col. Henry Breckinridge who received last week in Pennsylvania one vote for every 19 polled by Mr. Roosevelt got one vote in every six in Maryland. Since it is about safe to say that Democrats who would vote for Col. Breckinridge in a primary must be completely at odds with the new deal the outcome of the Maryland voting is important.

Col. Breckinridge is running in a few states to give Democrats an opportunity to register protest against President Roosevelt who is certain to be renominated. Votes for the colonel in other words really are votes against the President.

In Pennsylvania where Col. Breckinridge received 5 per cent of the Democratic votes cast—and without making a speech or having the benefit of an organization—the result was significant. If one voter of every 20 who voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 should vote for his opponent in 1936 the Democratic party would lose more than a million votes.

In Maryland where Col. Breckinridge received almost 20 per cent of the Democratic votes—thanks to a few speeches and an organization—the result was almost calamitous. Maryland has furnished an index to new deal opposition which reveals it is infinitely stronger than anyone dared to claim before the Free State went to the polls last Monday. It won't be admitted but the political situation has changed radically since the Maryland polls opened Monday morning. The invulnerable candidate suddenly has become vulnerable.

Mark It Well.

Every discussion of taxation produces repetition of what probably is one of the strangest arguments ever employed by taxpayers.

Instead of objecting to all proposals for higher taxes the great majority of Americans are criticizing officials of the government for failing to be more aggressive in their quest for revenue. To be sure individual proposals are criticized but not on the ground that no more taxes are necessary. In most cases criticism is motivated by disagreement over the revenue productivity of the proposals.

This fact should be marked well. On the whole Americans have persuaded themselves that heavier taxation is essential to preservation of financial stability. Nobody ever likes taxes but for once at least the majority of taxpayers are ready, even eager, to accept them as the price of national preservation. It is an extraordinary demonstration of social vision.

The senate which is considering an important tax bill should not be forgetful of the strange condition with which it is dealing. The country is convinced that higher taxes are necessary and therefore inevitable. It is not convinced that drastic reform of the corporate tax structure is essential or that it would produce more revenue than existing rates. Blessed with a favorable public opinion the senate which is bearing responsibility for the final form of the 1936 tax bill would be most foolish not to take advantage of it by confining tax revision to revenue and letting reform wait for a later time.

The Year Of The Drouth.

The possibility that 1936 may become in legend the year of the drouth still has not penetrated the consciousness of the eastern part of the United States. The possibility is real nevertheless. By the end of May experts will know whether or not the year's rainfall shortage is going to be calamitous or merely unfortunate.

Dust storms which have become so common that no longer get attention outside the affected areas mean that the moisture deficiency which blighted so many states in 1934 still is No. 1 factor in western agriculture. If it rains everything will be all right. If it doesn't rain nothing will be all right.

On the far side of the Mississippi and particularly southward in the dust bowl region the ground is caked and dry. From Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska come apprehensive reports. Calamity is not certain but in the opinion of experts it is at least a 50 per cent possibility. If a drouth materializes it will be a matter of national concern of course. Neither its direct nor indirect effects can be limited to one region.

A vast deal of useless worrying is done about things which never happen. Perhaps there will be no drouth in 1936. But perhaps there will be no European war, no inflation and no more old-fashioned winters, either. As long as worrying is going to be done the possibility of a serious drouth in 1936 is worth attention.

Maryland Primaries Teach a Lesson

Vote for Colonel Breckinridge Shows What Might Happen to Roosevelt With Strong Foe in Race

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—There is a lesson in the Maryland primaries which transcends the question of how large or how small a protest vote was recorded there inside the Democratic party. It is what a man of courage can do almost single handed in American politics.

The story of Henry Breckinridge and why he offered himself in Pennsylvania and Maryland primaries of the Democratic party is the narrative of a man who believes the new deal is not in accordance with the traditions of the party of Jefferson and who thinks that if a candidate in opposition to Mr. Roosevelt were named it would reveal a large number of the Democratic voters who are not controlled by federal patronage as anxious to show their dissent.

Mr. Breckinridge was assistant secretary of war under President Wilson and served in Washington at the same time that Franklin Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy. Mr. Breckinridge comes from the old American family of Kentucky which played a vital part in the early history of the republic. When the United States entered the war Henry Breckinridge entered the service and won the rank of colonel.

In recent years Colonel Breckinridge came into the limelight as the trusted adviser and attorney for Colonel Lindbergh in the late Democratic pre-convention campaign. Mr. Breckinridge was manager of the presidential candidacy of Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia.

All this background is necessary in order to indicate that while Mr. Breckinridge is an excellent speaker and a splendid campaigner he is by no means as well known nationally as Messrs. Landon, Vandenberg, Borah or Al Smith or any of the other prominent personalities in the major parties. He moreover has no following among any group or any financial support that could enlist for him large groups of followers.

Yet the Breckinridge vote in Maryland was 16 per cent of the total cast in the Democratic primary for the presidency. Anybody in Maryland who preferred to cast his ballot for a man who came from another state and hence could not even be called a favorite son must have had some grievance against the political philosophy of Franklin Roosevelt.

If there were a 16 per cent defection in the Democratic vote using the 1932 figures it would change the 1936 result.

Roosevelt 1932 vote of 22,621,856 minus 16 per cent equals 19,170,360.

Republican 1932 vote of 15,761,841 plus 3,651,497 Democratic equals 19,413,339.

On the basis of the above a plurality for Roosevelt of 7,960,016 in 1932 would be changed into a Republican plurality of 242,978 in 1936.

Now of course it will be immediately remarked and properly so that not all the 3,651,496 representing the Democratic defection would go to a Republican candidate. Likewise there are many persons doubtless who voted Republican in 1932 who will shift to Mr. Roosevelt this year. This is especially true in farm areas benefitted by the AAA.

But the Breckinridge idea of showing the extent of the protest affords an opportunity to measure what has been suspected for some time, namely that discontented Democrats are by no means as negligible a percentage as the Roosevelt spokesmen would have the country believe.

If Colonel Breckinridge could subtract 16 per cent of the Democratic vote in a state like Maryland what would an independent Democrat of the quality of Governor Lily of Massachusetts for instance be able to do in states in the north and eastern section of the country? This query will be heard again and again in the next few weeks as the question of organizing an independent Democratic ticket such as was offered to the country in 1896 is considered by the Democrats of the Jefferson tradition.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Down town new dealers seem to have been getting a little rough on the inside lately with Capitol Hill men handling the tax bill. That is there are evidences of pressure being brought to bear on reluctant legislators by powers above.

The Hill men (congressmen are often miscalled hill billies by the downtowners) showed signs earlier of dissatisfaction with the new corporation earnings distribution feature of the tax bill. This was faintly noticeable among some Democratic members of the senate finance committee. On the inside it was commonly said that four to six Democrats on the committee would tear those pages out of the tax draft if no one held back their hands.

Now the inside situation is a little different. The political handling of the bill by the downtowners has been exceptionally hard and shrewd. Observers can almost see certain senators squirming in their chairs from the invisible heat upon their backs.

Specific cases cannot be cited without involving confidences but the facts are well enough known to all who have observed developments closely of late.

Insistence

The result is that those who were expected to alter the administration bill in the senate have found themselves in political straitjackets. Whether they will yet choose to resist or go along peacefully is not decided. But the situation has swerved around to the point where the Oliphant crew of treasury campaigners for the bill has the upper hand.

Two weeks ago the Oliphant strategists were finding it necessary to make compromises. Now they are no longer amenable to new compromise and have quietly pushed aside some of the old ones.

This while some of the glaring technical errors of the bill will be eliminated by the senate the basic theory of forcing distribution of corporate earnings now is generally expected to be retained. Whether allowances will be made for corporate debt retirements is not yet clear.

Lower

The basis of the new heat of course is the old fact congressmen are running on the same ticket with President Roosevelt and dare not oppose him on any issue on which he is insistent. Apparently he is now insistent on the tax issue. For the same reason Senator La Follette is not getting anywhere on his plan to put heavier income taxes on the small taxpayers. That is where more revenue can be most easily obtained but it is not the thing to do in a campaign year.

When a Democrat bites a Democrat that's news these days. Consequently, when Senator Bone threatened a sensational investigation of the secret police in several government departments he created an inside stir. A dozen newsmen beset the senator to find out what was behind his move. They learned little.

The indications are there will be more stir than investigation. This appears to be Bone's purpose. Some of his friends have the idea that government investigations are going too far; that a scare should be thrown into them. The threat probably will do it for the next two or three weeks anyway. That there will be a senatorial investigation any time soon is highly doubtful.

If there is it would be far better from a new deal standpoint to have it in the capable and fair hands of Senator Bone than in the clutching fingers of the anti new dealers.

Prize Writing

The Pulitzer prize for reporting this year should go to American Minister Engert at Addis Ababa. His graphic dispatches evoked the admiration of reporters at the end. Ordinarily Engert's dispatches would have been kept confidential or censored by the state department but inasmuch as there was no established power in Ethiopia after Haile Selassie's flight the department gave them free publicity. For instance it did not even eliminate his report that the British had fired into the black rioters early in the game killing several. Engert however would have to share any prize with newsmen in Addis Ababa. They gave him much of his information. They had no other way of getting it out.

Results of the Italian conquest as foreseen by official prophets here are: Refusal of the United States to recognize the territory conquered by Mussolini with drawal of sanctions by European nations either openly or otherwise; unrest among the blacks and Indians now governed by Britain and other colonial powers and further weakening of the League of Nations.

C. Politics

J. Edgar Hoover was asked recently whom he considered to be public enemy No. 1. Hoover who has been having trouble trying to get funds for his G-men from Congress replied: "Old man politics" incidentally some congressmen have been criticizing G-men for shooting first. That is supposed to be why Hoover went to such pains personally to get harpis at New Orleans without mussing his hair.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks

NEW YORK, May 7.—Bicycling has given some parts of New York the glittering spin of Rotterdam. Not since the bike went the way of the pug dog and puff sleeve has it attained such popularity. For years its use was confined almost solely to messengers in Wall Street.

Today in the upper Broadway area several bicycle stores and renting agencies have opened. Also bike tog shop. And the bicycle parking problem has taken on the annoyance of the baby carriage problem in the courtyards and in front of apartment houses in Harlem and the Bronx.

However the most noticeable evidence of the renaissance is in Central Park. Many bicycle clubs mostly stenographers and clerks have been formed to pedal about the exclusive new track for an hour and then breakfast in the open at the municipally owned Tavern on the Green.

Another indication of the sudden popularity are warning signs before apartment houses on the upper East Side. "No Bicycles." Every morning too the roads leading out of New York for the New England area are awhirr with wheels. Young vacationists off for the countryside.

In France and I believe Holland the bicyclist has supreme right of way and woe betide the motorist who runs him down. But New York hasn't such a law and weaving in and out motor traffic has become one of the daily death-dodging miracles of this skip-the-gutter town. Bicycle makers are angling for a Woollcott, Dorothy Parker or such bell sheep to aid the renaissance; give it swank.

New Deal Faces Another Test

Utilities' Suit Attacks Constitutionality of PWA

By HERBERT PELHAM
Associated Press Writer.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Although the case is filled with a maze of technicalities under an elaborate administration attack, every move in a suit before the supreme court here aimed to rival the Schechter decision invalidating NRA in impact.

It is the action brought by utilities companies challenging constitutionality of PWA, particularly to block $100,000,000 in loans and grants for the construction of government-owned power plants.

Striking at the heart of the national recovery program, importance of the suit to the government lies in the fact that new deal agencies are now headed straight for a supreme court test.

There is little doubt in anyone's mind itself made it clear from the beginning that the case would not stop there.

Attorneys Are Prominent

The choice of counsel on both sides also indicates that there will be a fight to the finish.

The government turned over one of its outstanding battlers—the bushy haired quick-witted Jerome Frank to act as chief counsel and gave him two able assistants, Alexander Holtzoff and John W. Scott of the department of justice.

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson administration and Dean Acheson, former undersecretary of the treasury who resigned from the administration after reported disagreement with the fiscal policies of President Roosevelt represent the utility companies.

The Real Issue

The real significance of the case may be that the supreme court may decide whether execution of public works policy laid down by congress is an administrative or a legislative function.

The government contends that the allowing of PWA loans and grants is an administrative matter.

That section of the national recovery act under which the codes were set up was knocked out by the supreme court on the premise that the delegation of authority to the President was unconstitutional.

The utility companies have raised the same point. Their contention is that congress made an unlawful delegation of legislative power to the President and administrators by leaving to their discretion the type of projects to be financed from public funds.

Vandenberg's Future

Talk of Senator Vandenberg as a dark horse candidate for the Republican presidential nomination is causing increased speculation among certain of his friends who would like to save him for 1940.

Senator Couzens, his colleague, senator from Michigan, left little doubt he would support that outcome Independent of Vandenberg by the Michigan Republican convention gave indication that he might even move out of the senate horse classification.

Those who would have Vandenberg wait fear that if President Roosevelt is reelected he did so Republican candidate whose name may be will fade out of the political picture. That is almost true historically the fate of defeated presidential candidates Cleveland-Bryan being exceptions.

Vandenberg's Record

That Vandenberg records his own availability for the presidency seems indicated by his persistent refusal to quit the senate and himself. Action of the Michigan Republicans makes it virtually certain the name of Vandenberg will come before the convention when the first ballot is taken.

Back of the live but at present limited public agitation for Vandenberg the record he has established and how he overcame a Democratic landslide to his reelection in 1934.

He has kept his political record largely free of partisan flavor. He led a successful fight against continuing the Panama canal and the Muscle Shoals power project. More recently he set a fire under AAA when he brought out what he called reluctant disclosure of benefit payments going into the pockets of thousands of dollar-a-year corporate land holders.

Still Comparatively Young

There is tremendous speculation as to a presidential nomination for Vandenberg though it means only that he is a candidate to be balanced against Parkers the Davises and Blaines who didn't stand a chance against their opposition.

Vandenberg is 52 in 1940. He would be 56 well below the age of those too old could be considered for nomination.

Either decision would be a gamble. To take Vandenberg now would put him against opposition which by 1940 might not overcome. To defer race until 1940 might find his popularity would wane.

TAFT AT RALLY IN COLUMBUS

Scores Green's Support of Roosevelt in Talk Before Akron Democrats.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, May 7—Robert A. Taft declared the "favorite son" movement here for a third term today.

Representative Cunningham, who is supporting President Roosevelt's presidential preference, will be defeated next Tuesday, Taft said, when convention delegates are elected in Akron [illegible] President William Green of the American Federation of Labor is supporting President Roosevelt's selection.

Bennett To Talk

Frank E. Bennett, Rochester, Ohio newspaper publisher and [illegible] of the Ohio delegate [illegible] Borah, was to address a Youngstown rally tonight.

Representatives of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas and Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, were to help their Republican state organization open the campaign for the election of "favorite son" delegates at the Columbus meeting tonight.

The organization's slate of 32 delegate candidates is opposed by the Borah slate of 35.

Taft, speaking in Cleveland, told his audience that "scarcely any Republican newspapers are supporting Borah."

"My speeches do not criticize the new deal or anything except Republicans," Taft said.

Tax Courses Open

Maurice Maschke, retired Cuyahoga county Republican leader, told Taft's audience "there are two courses open to us here, the favorite son candidacy, with its opportunity to select the best suited man, or the candidacy of Sen. Borah. There isn't much wisdom in nominating a candidate who is certain to lose."

speaking from the same platform, urged the election of delegates pledged to Taft, in order, he said, to give Ohio Republicans an opportunity to survey the field of candidates before their final decision.

Taft charged that Borah had avoided attacking either President Roosevelt or the new deal and said Borah's principal newspaper support in the state was from Democratic papers. He said Borah had chosen to attack business monopolies because that was "the only issue on which he would not have to attack the new deal and he didn't want to criticize the new deal."

The real danger to business, Taft said, was not the danger of monopoly but the effort of the administration to have the government take over the operation of the business system.

Previous to the Cleveland meeting, Taft had also spoken in Oberlin.

Certification Discussion

A spirited discussion on the question of the certification of music teachers in Ohio featured the luncheon meeting yesterday at the First Presbyterian church. H. W. Hannah of Cleveland, chairman of the committee on certification in Ohio, presided and the discussion was led by Charles Rogers of Cleveland, former national chairman of Certification of Music teachers and former dean of the school of fine arts at the University of Arizona. The purpose of a certification law, Mr. Hannah explained in introducing the question, has for its chief end, emphasis on musical ability and giving the person with real musical ability a place in the front ranks of the profession instead of the supersalesman.

The certification of music teachers is based on the experience in organizations of state teachers throughout the country, Mr. Rogers stated. It is not a question for the private teacher nor the school system but it is something for the child, he argued. He expressed the belief that the time is passed for any ballyhoo, and for this reason, he stated, the question is not one of a year or 10 years, but one of today.

The luncheon was followed by an afternoon of organ and piano music. Frank Mannheimer, concert pianist of New York City, played a program of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Debussy, Roussel and Ravel, and Rexford Keller of Ohio Wesleyan university, at the organ, was heard in a program including compositions by Vivaldi-Bach, Russell, Boex and Franck.

"Most of my troubles came from indigestion and constipation. I suffered a lot with my stomach and would be very hungry and could eat right then after taking a few mouthfuls I would have to stop. In a couple hours or so I would be hungry again, but would fill my stomach with sour acid risings came up into my throat.

"I often felt bilious and had spells of dizziness. My vision would become clouded with spots before my eyes, my tongue was coated and a bitter taste was in my mouth most all the time.

STATE RESTS ITS CASE IN MANSFIELD MURDER

from testimony of Bobby Moorhead, the slain girl's 14-year-old brother, and that of Haskel Smith, her escort on that fatal night, when he said:

"He told me that if he ever caught her out with any other fellow he'd shoot her."

The testimony, unexpected and damning to the defense's case, heightened the drama which a state's witness had precipitated only a few minutes earlier, when the story of Harry Cooper, Mansfield policeman, conflicted with that of one other state witness.

Spoke of Girl

Schonauer, who took the stand coatless, with the sleeves of his white shirt rolled to his elbows, said under direct examination by Special Prosecutor Blecher, that he had known Charles Wilson for about eight weeks; that both were truckers at the same plant; that the former Ashland college boy had spoken frequently to him of Jean Moorhead, "his girl."

The conversation, Schonauer said, took place about a week before the shooting.

On another occasion, Schonauer said, Wilson had "told me about the time he had a quarrel with her—a fight with her, and her mother called his mother up and wanted him. And he told his mother to tell her he wasn't home."

Bolsters Love Claim

While the trucker's testimony supported the state's contention of premeditation, it bolstered to some extent at least, the defense claim that the boy was hopelessly in love with the dead girl.

On the witness stand, Schonauer also said:

"He told me about loving Jean. He said he was deeply in love with her and wanted to marry her. And he said if he'd lose her it would kill him."

The youth also said that Wilson had told him of declining business offers in other cities because he "wouldn't leave his girl," and that he didn't plan to marry her, however, until she was out of school.

Denies Felony Conviction

Under cross-examination conducted by Defense Counsel Day, Schonauer denied he had ever been convicted of a felony, but his reply to Day's question, "have you ever been arrested for burglary," was stifled by a defense objection sustained by the court.

Copper, desk man in the Mansfield police department, told of receiving a telephone call from Bobby Moorhead on April 4, at 11:38 p. m., to the effect that some one was threatening his sister with a gun. With police records in his hands, Copper said:

"He (Bobby Moorhead) said there was some one at his house and he had a gun and was threatening his sister. He didn't know whether it was loaded or not."

Testimony Varies

Copper's testimony varied with that of the dead girl's brother, however, in that Bobby had stated he had witnessed the shooting before summoning police. When he came home on that Saturday night, Bobby said, Wilson's car was parked beside the one in which Jean Moorhead and Smith, her escort of the evening, were seated in front of the Moorhead home.

Approaching his sister, he said, he told her: "It's getting late; you'd better come in." His sister did not answer, Bobby said, and he saw Wilson reach with his right hand into an inside pocket. He continued:

"When I saw that action, I grabbed Charles' arm, but he shoved me away and I lighted back of the rear right fender of Smith's car and instantly I heard the shots.

Saw Girl Leaning

"I looked in through the right rear window of the car and could see Jean leaning toward Haskell."

Wilson, he said, turned from the Smith car and muttered: "That ought to fix you." Wilson then, he said, got into his own car and drove away. Bobby continued:

"I ran around the car and saw Jean slouched forward with her head on the steering wheel. Haskell was half in and half out of the car."

He said he opened the front car door, and tried to pull the girl from the car, when Smith said:

"Don't worry, I think they were blanks."

Summons Police, Doctor

At Smith's suggestion, he said, he went into the house and summoned police and the family doctor.

When the bright red skirt and gray flannel jacket, and the dainty lingerie of the dead girl were brought into the courtroom the accused Charles Wilson, who claims that her death was accidental, leaning over defense counsel's table, placed his head on his arms and wept.

He did not look up once while the blood-stained garments were being labeled as evidence, nor was he able to compose himself enough to return to his cell until many minutes after court had adjourned.

Her Mother Weeps

As Coroner Hugh Winbigler described the six wounds in the girl's body, and again when the clothing was brought into the courtroom, Mrs. Ralph E. Moorhead, mother of the girl, wept openly while her husband and son seated on each side of her, struggled for control.

Bobby, but half grown, with clear gray eyes, a freckled upturned nose, and a forthright manner, made an impressive witness. When asked if he knew the nature of an oath, he replied simply: "It means telling the truth."

Other witnesses called included arresting officers, Police Chief Merle D. Unkle, and Mrs. Hazel Leapley, from whose home in Crestline, 12 miles west of here, Charles phoned his father to "come and get him" after he had fled from the scene of the shooting.

The accused boy's father, E. J. Wilson and his uncle, Howard Wilson of Chicago, had remained at his side to encourage and comfort him.

HUGHES ASKS MORE FEDERAL JUSTICES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7 — Additional federal judges to speed the disposition of litigation were recommended by Chief Justice Hughes today in one of his rare speeches.

Addressing the American Law Institute, he said that "where delays are most serious they are due to a failure to provide an adequate supply of judges to attend to the work of the courts."

THREE MEN KILLED IN LOCOMOTIVE BLAST

The accident happened east of North Alexander station, about six miles south of here, about midforenoon.

SLAYING CONFESSION BY BRADY REPORTED

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, May 7—Three more men were questioned by police today in connection with activities of Alfred Brady, who was reported by Police Lieut. Roy Pope yesterday to have confessed the slaying of Edward Lindsey, Piqua, O., grocery clerk on March 21.

Brady is charged with the murder of Sergt. Richard Rivers here on April 27.

He was quoted by Pope as admitting robberies of two grocery stores in Springfield, O., on the day Lindsey was slain and a holdup in Eaton, O., on Jan. 16.

GRANGE LEADER ASKS FOR FARM EQUALITY

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., May 7 — Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, declared today that "agriculture asks no special privilege for itself. It asks nothing but equality of opportunity."

In a speech prepared for delivery over a local radio station by electrical transcription, Taber asserted that while the recovery programs of the great farm organizations differ in some details, they agree on monetary policy.

"What agriculture demands is an honest dollar—one that shall be just to debtor and creditor alike," he said; " a dollar with constant purchasing power over the primary necessities of life; a dollar that will prevent uncontrolled inflation; a dollar that will prevent a repetition of the disastrous deflation of this depression."

Taber quoted from an article by Sen. William E. Borah, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, who, the Grange Master said, "has steadfastly defended the position of organized agriculture on monetary matters."

The Borah article said that farm income has dropped off 28 billion dollars in the last six years.

MISSING PROFESSOR SAFE IN CINCINNATI

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., May 7 — Prof. George Kenneth Boyce, missing three months tomorrow from the University of Washington (state) campus, was "safe and well" here today, his bride of several weeks said.

SEN. BORAH TALKS TO 2,500 AT ADA

milliterman from Ohio, and Ed Schorr, Republican state chairman, who he asserted are behind the "favorite son" candidacy of Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati attorney.

"Just think of the gallant fight Walter Brown and Ed Schorr would make against monopoly if they had a chance," Borah said, smiling. "I have nothing personal against Brown and Schorr and certainly nothing against Mr. Taft—he bears an honored name at least."

"But I am opposed to the system they represent, to their theories and their policies and I will fight them to the end and I mean the end," he declared. "I may not be nominated but they'll know I'm in the campaign. And I think I'll be nominated."

Defiant Alignments

Continuing his criticism of monopolies the senator declared that the "real fight in the Republican party is between those who are willing to connive to control monopoly and fix prices and those who are definitely opposed to the system." He challenged his opponents to meet him on the platform and deny the evil effects of monopolism. "Are you willing to permit those things to continue until this country is pauperized?" he asked.

Borah declared the only solution to our economic problem is restoration of purchasing power to the great mass of people. "This can not be done as long as monopolists are allowed to engage in price fixing," he said.

Commenting on the rumors that former Sen. Simeon D. Fess will "take a walk" if Borah is nominated, the Idaho senator said, "If will not be necessary for Fess to walk out, I have remained in the party while he and his friends were running it and I think he could stand it eight years while I'm running the show." He recalled that Fess is a former student and former professor of Ohio Northern university at Ada. "I think Dr. Fess has somewhat departed from the teachings of this institution," he said.

Advocates Neutrality

Borah pleaded for a policy of strict neutrality in European quarrels. No one can know the future of the European continent with reference to peace or war, he said, but "I am uneasy" about the situation. He compared the present armament race and other warlike preparations to the situation prior to 1914. "If war should come to Europe every conceivable effort would be made to draw America into the conflict. We would again face high-sounding propaganda and I say in all sincerity that I do not know whether this government would survive. War is at all times an enemy to a free form of government."

Borah urged that the people of this country be "firm and steadfast against all forms of war propaganda." "I would not send a single American boy across the water in any European controversy which might arise," he declared.

Touching on the problem of taxes and debt the senator called for a "firm policy" to collect the European war debt. "In my opinion a firm policy would result in the collection of every penny of that money," he asserted.

Defends Constitution

Borah defended the American Constitution and the supreme court. "We can solve every economic problem we have without changing any fundamental principle of the Constitution," he declared. Restraint upon a public official, guaranteed by the document, is necessary in order to make him a servant of the people instead of their master, he said. He pictured a dictatorship if that constitutional restraint is removed.

Answering a charge of his opponents that he has communistic leanings Borah said, "I can't be such a dangerous person so long as I stay inside the Constitution—and I have done so." "However I do believe that the powers in that document are there for the purpose of being executed in the interests of the whole people and not for the few," he declared.

The senator said there is some evidence of national recovery at this time. "The ships bound for Mediterranean cruises are loaded, the stock exchange is active and the brokers are optimistic," he commented. "But there are 12 and a half million unemployed and four million on charity and there can be no real recovery while that condition prevails," he asserted. "Let us not fight for recovery for a few but for the average American citizen."

Sees Farmer Aided

In commenting on farm problems Borah expressed a belief that the Roosevelt administration has "helped the farm situation. I voted for every measure of the new deal which I thought was constitutional and was for the benefit of the mass of people," he said. "And I didn't stop to ask where these measures came from or whether or not Dr. Tugwell wrote them," he added.

The Idahoan attacked the present policy of reciprocity agreements with foreign nations in connection with the tariff policy. "I would not permit one ounce of foreign agricultural products to come into this country so long as the American farmer is prepared to supply the nation," he said.

By The Associated Press

ASHTABULA COUNTY FIGHTS CANAL PLAN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—Opposition of Ashtabula county residents to the proposed Beaver-Mahoning canal to connect the Ohio river with Lake Erie was laid today before the army board of engineers.

A petition, signed by 3,521 of 4,500 voters in the area where a reservoir would be created on the Grand river, protested it "does not seem fair" to "evict them from their homes for the purpose of constructing a canal, which will all but ruin the port of Ashtabula." It said the canal would take "many millions of taxable property off the tax list of Ashtabula county, and will increase not only our taxes but the taxes on everyone in Ohio."

2 YOUNG AIR ACES CLAIM NEW RECORD

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 7—A couple of young air adventurers yawned nonchalantly today after speeding in to a "belly landing" at Port Columbus to claim a new distance record for non-stop flights in small ships.

All 22-year-old Bob Buck of Westfield, N. J., and his cousin, Lee Bellingham, needed to continue their trip from Burbank, Calif., were repairs to an oil line and the landing gear to their 90-horsepower monocoupe. They dropped the gear in Burbank and estimated they had gained 10 miles an hour through lowered weight and wind resistance.

METHODISTS SPEED WORK ON BIG ISSUES

All but Two Parts of Report of Supervisional System Put Before Committees.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 7—Standing committees of the Methodist Episcopal general conference had the "go ahead" signal today as their members worked to bring reports on the more important questions before the conference delegates by the end of the week.

The conference disposed of the twice-postponed report of the supervisional system committee by referring to committees all but two sections of the recommendations.

These two divisions, providing for establishment of jurisdictional conferences within the church and for election of conference bishops, were referred to the anticipated conference on unification with the Methodist Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant church.

In a move described by officials as an effort to prevent a rush and jam in the closing days of the sessions, the conference adopted a resolution requiring that all reports must be brought before it not later than May 15.

Dr. Daniel Marsh of Boston, whose committee on state of the church is considering several resolutions dealing with the fight of liberals and conservatives within the church, said he hoped to have a report ready for presentation by Friday.

The committee on state of the church had a memorial asking the Methodist Episcopal church to indorse the principles of birth control legislation now pending in congress to allow distribution of birth control information and supplies through the mails.

The memorial said that "we affirm our convictions that ethical birth control within the sacred limits of marriage relationship is a moral right of husband and wife that they may space their children to safeguard the health of the mother and assure that each child may have a fair start in life."

Although annual conferences of the church have approved distribution of information on birth control, the general conference never has taken a stand on the question.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7—Fred Hunter, seized here last Friday with Alvin Karpis, was held in federal prison under $200,000 bond today pending a decision by Attorney General Cummings as to what charges he will be tried on first.

A charge of "harboring and concealing" Karpis was filed before United States Commissioner Reginald H. Carter Jr. by District Attorney Rene Viosca. Hunter refused to enter a plea and waived preliminary hearings.

ness for the coming of his twin brother who was to impersonate him during his secret and dangerous journey.

The door to his room was unlocked, a part of the pretense of my father's being ill in it, and I knocked lightly before I entered, furthering the same deception, although I knew that the nurse who was aiding us in the scheme was not there, but in the kitchen preparing one of the cunningly camouflaged trays which went up to the supposed sick room three times a day.

But there was nothing in my father's room which could possibly be of interest to a meddler, except some papers cunningly hidden and safeguarded by special locks. I kept the keys to those hiding places in a secret compartment in my own room, and I had taken one of the keys from its hiding place before I left Lillian.

In Secret Compartment

Following my father's invariable rule, I closed and locked the door before doing anything else. Then I walked to a panel in the wall, which to all appearances was just like any of the other panels, but which, when I pressed a hidden spring, swung outward, revealing a wall safe behind it.

I knew the combination to this, and using it, saw that door also swing outward. Next, I used a key I always carried with me to unlock one of the strong boxes, and from it took my father's code books.

Closing the strong box, safe, panel and door after me, I hurried back to my own room and put code books down on the table before Lillian.

"Now we can get to work!" I said.

She gave me a comradely grin.

"I've ben improving my time," she said. "I've copied the first page of this thing, so I can work at it allee same time when you do. It's in a different code than the rest of the ...sstle, I'm sure, and I think it's in one of the easier ones.

I picked up the first page of the letter and scanned it closely.

"I know it is," I said with the assurance born of long and arduous work over my father's codes. It's in this book."

I took one of the books, opened it, and laid it down upon the table. Lillian hitched her chair around so that she could study it with me, and we went to work upon the translation of the first page of the code letter.

It was a comparatively simple task, for we soon confirmed my selection of the book we were using. But when the translation lay written out before us, Lillian looked at me with wide open eyes.

"I hope this makes some sense to you," she said. "It doesn't mean a thing to me."

Before speaking, I carefully read over again the sentence into which the code had resolved itself. It ran:

"All my love to you, Richard, Junior and Faith, and do not forget the strawberry jam and the corn on the cob."

STATE FERA STAFF SLASH ANNOUNCED

100 Removed from Liquidating Force; Three in Marion County Retained.

State FERA officials today announced a reduction of 100 in the staff liquidating that branch of relief work throughout Ohio, but County Relief Director John Abel said Marion county was not affected.

None of the 65 persons released in county FERA offices were taken from the Marion county office where three persons are working, the same number as last month. Mr. Abel said the three will continue at least until June 1.

A reduction of $24,000 in the FERA budget for May as compared with April was part of the statewide curtailment, Dayton H. Frost, Ohio FERA administrator, told The Associated Press the slash was another step in liquidation of the FERA by June 30. He urged the FERA'S remaining creditors to submit claims promptly if they hoped for immediate payment, because bills received after June 30 will have to be submitted to offices in Washington.

If you feel tired, run-down, nervous and out of sorts

There is usually a definite reason for such complaints . . . so, now let's reason sensibly.

Don't try to get well in a day . . . this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

But there is a certain scientific way you can assist by starting those digestive juices in the stomach to flowing more freely and at the same time supply a balanced mineral deficiency the body needs.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel rundown . . . a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak, with a tendency towards anemia—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

Much more could be said—a trial will thoroughly convince you that this way, in the absence of any organic trouble, will start you on the road to feeling like yourself again. © S.S.S. Co.

G.O.P. Will Hold Outdoor Notification Ceremony

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON May 7—With the June conventions drawing close both parties pushed ahead today with plans to greet their presidential and vice presidential nominees in huge outdoor ceremonies

Republican Chairman Henry P Fletcher announced that provisional arrangements have been made to use the municipal stadium at Cleveland conveniently located near the convention hall to notify the party's nominees of the convention's choice

The Democrats previously announced plans to notify President Roosevelt of his renomination with a ceremony at Franklin Field Philadelphia

Other political developments included comment by a Republican on a recent declaration of President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and a speech by Democratic Chairman James A Farley asserting that the east had benefitted from farm relief because of enormously increased shipments of manufactured goods to the west

President Green said recently that he favored the reelection of President Roosevelt Chairman Fletcher in a statement last night asserted that the Republican national committee "attaches no particular significance to this because Green has always been a Democrat while the federation's is non partisan"

The South Dakota primary in which an uninstructed slate claimed by forces of Gov Alf M Landon of Kansas contested with one supporting Sen Borah of Idaho continued to attract attention because of the closeness of the vote

With only 75 of the state's 1,850 precincts unreported the vote for the former slate was 42,227 as compared with 41,427 for the latter

In California the Republican uninstructed slate with all but 546 of the 11,162 precincts reporting had 327,945 votes compared with 250,350 for the slate pledged to Landon On the Democratic side President Roosevelt had 766,617 votes to 76,867 for Rep John "Jack" Gilbert Graham and 101,403 for Upton Sinclair

"JUDGE'S ALLEY LAW" HELD CONSTITUTIONAL

Statute Requires Judicial Aspirants To Designate Which Term They Seek.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 7—The Ohio supreme court held the so-called "judge's alley law," requiring common pleas judges to designate to which terms they seek election, constitutional yesterday.

Arthur F. Gustafson of Cuyahoga county, contending the law was unconstitutional, sought to become a Republican candidate for one of seven judgeships with terms starting on different days in January, 1937. He held that all terms should begin on Jan. 1.

The supreme court upheld the district court of appeals in its refusal to compel the Cuyahoga county board of elections to place Gustafson's name on the Republican primary ballot.

Eastern Motor Freight, Inc., and Sears, Roebuck & Co. lost in the supreme court their fight to compel the Potomac Insurance Co. to indemnify them for the loss of $2,651 worth of tires burned in a truck accident.

Common pleas court directed a verdict for the insurance company, the court of appeals affirmed, and the supreme court declined to consider an appeal.

Both the temperature and humidity of the air in a room are registered visibly with a new instrument intended for residence use.

BY MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS: Rupert Joris married Hope Deeline on the rebound, after Elinor Fleming jilted him because of his drinking. At first Rupert insisted on an annulment, and offered Hope alimony to permit it. But when he finds that his friends insist the marriage will not last he suddenly reverses himself, gives Hope the check and tells her she is to stay. Dirk, Rupert's younger brother, is described at the result. He and Hope part strangely, just before the hasty wedding.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Happy Day

DIRK sat watching Hope. Sunday dinner, which had been usually an abstracted meal, was tonight enlivened by her presence. She sat in the place where Elinor had so often sat, and she seemed gay and at ease.

Dirk had supposed that this first appearance at the table would be an ordeal for her, that sitting opposite Rupert would inevitably try her spirits.

In this he had been mistaken. Rupert himself seemed in rather good humor, although he was drinking less than usual. His presence appeared not to disturb Hope. She seemed conscious of him, though not in the way Dirk had anticipated. Laughing and talking with Dirk, it was plain that her smile was for Rupert, her swift dark glance.

She had been driving with Dirk most of the afternoon. He had shown her the village, and they had encircled the beautiful mountain known as the Storm King, winding through woods still in their summer green. Returning, they had gone for a stroll outside the walls of Lowrie, on the riverside, passing the tomb of that ancient Joris lying on the embankment.

They had leaned together on the iron fence that, amid arbor vitae and dwarf-cedars, encircled the grave. Dirk read the inscription in the bronze slab that covered it, carved beneath a lion's head:

Bless you, my friend,
Who pass in reverence by.
My curse on you
Who touch the place I lie.

"Like Shakespear's epitaph," said Hope.

"The English, perhaps," agreed Dirk. "You should read the Dutch one just beneath it. It alludes to hellfire as waiting for any one who disturbs him before judgment day. Poor old great-great-great—I don't know just how great he was—Uncle Pieter! Why couldn't he have slept with the rest of his family in Sleepy Hollow...or even inside his own wall?"

"Perhaps he liked the river too well," suggested Hope.

"I'll bet he hates the railroad down there. You notice when they cut into the slope to build it they spared Uncle Pieter."

Hope said she didn't blame them. She would have spared Uncle Pieter, too.

"Well, there was some arguments, I understood. But even corporations have their qualms. Uncle Pieter's epitaph....Don't go too near the edge there. The cedars hide it. You might go over."

"It wouldn't be much of a tumble," discovered Hope. She had parted the cedars to look at the river, its far sapphire sweep and tranquil boats. They went down rock steps and strolled at its edge, facing a wind, faintly salty, coming in from the sea. The wind died and the sun went down—deep down into the river, dyeing it vermilion. The sail-boats, moving into the arc of the sunset, became pointed flames. Presently everything was mauve and misty. Lights blossomed on the Jersey shore.

Hope, Dirk learned, was going to remain at Lowrie. Rupert had said so, had given her a check, and told her to buy herself proper clothes, the clothes his wife should wear. All this she told him as they walked in the sunset.

Clothes, she no doubt felt, were matters of importance to Rupert, for, coming home, she had changed her dress again, had put on this frock of embroidered muslin, with a dahlia from the piano at her waist. Her curls had a gloss as from much brushing, and she had rouged her lips with a certain skill.

What had passed between them, wondered Dirk. The chances were that Rupert had meant to send the girl away; then, hearing how Elinor had predicted she would leave of her own accord, had accepted the challenge, and permitted her to stay.

Dirk had relayed Elinor's remark to Rupert with the suspicion that he would do just that. It was part of his own unreasoning efforts to protect Hope, to keep her in the house. Something dark and strange rankled in him. He was conscious of other feelings, of desires at war with his own efforts.

Had he not been obscurely hoping, when he went searching for her this morning, that Rupert had indeed thrown her out? He had meant to find her, wherever the search might take him, but with the hope that she would say, "I have no friend but you...."

Rupert and Hope had risen. Dirk laid a hand on Hope's chair, followed her from the room. Rupert spoke to him in the hall as Hope went into the library.

"I've got to go over the papers of the Dunhaven case," he said. "It's coming up in White Plains tomorrow, and I'll be there all day. I'm wondering if you will mind taking...."

He glanced toward the library, and Dirk supplied the name with a smile.

"Hope."

"I wonder if you will mind taking her to lunch. It needn't be out of your way....say to the Lawyers' Club. She'll be at the bank tomorrow, and shopping."

No explanation of his solicitude. No reference to his change of mood.

"Glad to," said Dirk.

"Tomorrow evening," suggested Rupert, "you might get Isabel and we'll go somewhere for dinner. I suppose there's nothing at the theater yet."

"There's the opening of 'The Black Swan,'" offered Dirk. "Ernest Webb's new play. Ernest vont Gage Seymour seats, and Elinor asked Isabel and me to have dinner with them, and go along. I'm not tied, however."

"I'd go," Rupert answered. "You like Ernest."

He went upstairs, and Dirk joined Hope in the library. She was looking over the books, old, old volumes, some of them, bound in calf and morocco. Their shelves reached halfway to the ceiling. A fire burned on the hearth, and a bowl of chrysanthemum was on the table.

There was the strange warm feeling of a woman in the house. Even the servants felt it, and had paid the involuntary homage of flowers and a fire. Or had Rupert ordered these?

Hope glanced about, and Dirk said,

"Rupert's gone up. Had some papers to go through."

He added, half-sitting against the table, watching her in her pale dress against the shadowy background of old books.

"He'll be out of town tomorrow. Says I may take you to lunch, and specifies the place."

"Where?" she asked with interest.

"Lawyers' club, so that I won't run too far afield. Passaic, but near the office. All right?"

"All right," she smiled. "And will you show me the office?"

He promised, and carried to the couch a book she had extracted from the shelves. It was the "History of the Joris Family," a huge and ancient tome, bound in pigskin. He revered her taste, for few had shown the inclination to delve into its labyrinth of fine, uneven print, its dull, old-fashioned prose.

She was looking, however, at the pictures.

"Tell me about them," she said. And Dirk sat down beside her, and told her what he knew, turning the yellow pages.

There were square Dutch burgomasters, and their squarer wives. There was a duke in a black hat with a red plume. There was his duchess, wearing pearls and a gathered velvet gown. Rembrandt had painted them, and they hung in the dining room. There was a crest, a three-masted ship sails unfurled, pennants flying.

She paused at a woodcut of Jan Steen's portrait of Croon Joris. Dirk wondered if she saw the resemblance of Rupert. She said nothing, and he turned the page.

"Here's the ancestor who built this house. Mynheer Hans Joris. Doesn't he look shrewd and twinkling? Frightful old smuggler he was, but most respected. And here's the "Onrust," the Restless. A boat big enough to go on the ocean, first product of skilled labor on Manhattan Island. They say the phlegmatic Dutch actually cheered as she slid down the ways."

"Was Uncle Pieter there, do you suppose?"

"No. Too early for Uncle Pieter. Did his grave wake your interest in the family?"

"I shouldn't wonder. His wanting to lie out there all by himself." She looked at the fire. "Some of us have to be alone. But not many of us want to be."

She was smiling now. Her eyes came back to the book. "Here's a crest," she said. "A helmet in profile."

Hope learns some curious family history, tomorrow.

'Let's Pay As We Go'

We must pay the 1935 operating deficit of $81,000.00. We must pay our contractual obligations, hydrant rentals and street lighting, for which we are $17,000.00 short each year. We do not believe that you want the policemen and firemen cut 45%. The levy proposes to restore their salaries to 85%. We believe the levy has unusual merit. Will you vote for the 3.2 levy and help put our city on a sound financial basis?

Traffic on busy streets is measured in millions of car-miles annually—and millions of car stops. Can you make these stops swiftly, surely, with least possible skidding?

You can if your streets are concrete. Concrete's gritty surface grips and holds tires, offers maximum traction in any weather. Its uniform riding surface gives you driving confidence—a further safety aid. And at night, concrete's light-gray, highly visible color makes your streets safer for motorist and pedestrian alike.

For economy, for good appearance—and for safety—insist on concrete.

Allen's 7-Hit Hurling Helps Indians Trim Athletics

DIZZY DEAN WINS PITCHING DUEL AS CARDS BEAT PHILLIES

Yanks Wallop Tigers, 14-3; Cincinnati Loses to Brooklyn, 5-2.

By The Associated Press

Although he's adhered firmly to the announced plan of "reforming" this season, Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean has not been able entirely to keep away from games that are almost as busy as his nickname. He is not worrying the Cardinal ace, however, for old Diz is winning at better than his usual rate of four out of five so far.

After going behind to cover in the season's opener, Dean has evaded defeat by one run margins three times, handed out plenty of hits and still come through. He took an 8-7 game from the Reds a month touched for nine hits, beat the Pirates in the tenth, 3-2, and blanked Brooklyn with three hits.

Yesterday he survived one of the toughest games of them all to beat the Phillies 3-2 even though his teammates failed to support his good pitching.

The Me half of "Me and Paul" started only seven hits and walked eight but went into the ninth a run behind as Charley Gelbert's homer was the only run off Bucky Walter. Then Joe Medwick singled and came all the way home when Jose Gomez made a frantic wild heave of Johnny Mize's grounder. Intentional passes crammed the corners and Curt Davis lost the game with one toss after he replaced Walter—a throw to the outfield instead of first.

Although the Dean-Walter duel was outstanding in the National League, where slugging marked the triumphs of the Cubs, Giants and Dodgers, there was plenty of fire flinging in the junior circuit.

Monte Pearson set the pace when he limited the champion Tigers to three blows and took a big part in the slugging that brought the Yanks a 14-3 triumph. Johnny Marcum hurled his first complete game for the Red Sox, a seven-hitter that beat the Browns 7-4 for their tenth straight loss. Johnny Allen of Cleveland also hurled seven hit ball and chalked six to trim the Athletics 7-1 while Ted Lyons of the White Sox outlasted three Washington hurlers to gain a 5-1 decision.

Seven elbowers participated in the ten-inning Giants-Pittsburgh struggle which New York won 6-5 on hits by Jimmy Ripple and Gus Mancuso. Tex Carleton had only a couple of bad innings against the Bees but he finally was yanked to save Chicago's lead in the ninth and let the Cubs win 8-6. Big George Earnshaw, however, did very well by himself and the Dodgers, limiting the Reds to seven blows for a 5-2 triumph that broke Brooklyn's six-game losing streak.

TO PLAY SUNDAY

The Mt. Gilead and Morral independent baseball teams will meet in a game at the Morral field, Sunday at 2 o'clock.

Sunday School and Commercial League Schedules

The complete schedule of twilight games for the three city recreation softball leagues was announced today by Elmer Shaw, secretary of the Marion Softball Commission.

Teams of Sunday School league No. 1 will play Monday nights, Sunday School loop No. 2 will see action Tuesday nights, and Commercial league teams have their games booked for Thursday nights.

In addition to the three twilight leagues, an All-Star night league will begin its season early in June, with games to be played under the lights at Lincoln Park, on a set-up of three nights each week. The night schedule will be announced in the near future.

Shovel Team Marshals Forces for Opening Of Season Sunday

Prospective members of the Marion Steam Shovel baseball team worked out with the regulars in a fast practice session last night at Lincoln park. The squad, built on the foundation of last year's crack team, will open its season, Sunday, May 10, when the Lamb Glass Co.'s aggregation of Mt. Vernon invades the local park.

Manager Alex Shoup put the team through its paces last night and looked with a hopeful eye on equalling or bettering the team's record of 14 victories in 15 games last season. Among the prospective candidates for regular positions who looked particularly impressive during the workout last night were Jimmie Kunkle, Bill Williams, Rex Frazier, Ted Anderson and B. R. Drumm.

Kunkle poled three hits over the center-field fence in the practice session and looks good to hold down an outfield position. Drumm, a member of the squad in former years, was forced out of the lineup by illness early last summer. His return along with that of Ted Anderson, gives fans a hopeful outlook on the catching situation. It will be up to Anderson and Drumm to handle the assignment behind the plate, which was filled last season by Kenneth Gallant.

Gallant, considered one of the team's spark plugs, was transferred to Shelby as manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. office there. Both Rex Frazier and Bill Williams are recruits for the 1936 team. Capable in infield positions, they could easily be used to fill a gap in the outfield.

Pitching duties, according to present indications, will be largely in the hands of veterans from last year, Bill Darnell and Harold Fetter, Bob Van Scoy, outfielder and utility moundsman, has returned this year along with the following veterans, Don Penry, Francis Robbins, Walt Baldauf, outfielders; Don McAninch, shortstop, Alex Shoup, 2b, and John Marshall, 3b.

The entire squad will hold its final practice for the opening game at Lincoln park Friday at 6 p. m.

SOFTBALL BOARD TAKES STRICT STAND ON ELIGIBILITY RULES

All Star Night League Teams Announced; Stadium Plans Progress.

Marion Softball Commissioners went to bat at the Y. M. C. A. last night and scored heavily in announcing their decision on eligibility rules for participants in the Sunday school softball leagues.

Of major importance was the commission's ruling on the section which governs the status of a player changing from one team to another. Quoting from the often contested Rule No. 7 which reads, "If a player who competed with a particular Sunday school wishes to transfer to another Sunday school, he must refrain from competing with any Sunday school team for a period of one season...." the commissioners said they would adhere strictly to it.

According to their interpretation, any member of a 1935 Sunday school team which has disbanded will be ineligible for competition as a member of any Sunday school team during 1936. Such players, the commission ruled, must remain out of the Sunday school lineups until 1937. This, however, has no effect on Commercial or All Star night league competition, they explained.

The commission registered a hit on the announcement that plans for the proposed concrete stadium at Lincoln park have been submitted to WPA officials here. The plans, according to the report, have received the okay of Marion and Mansfield WPA officials, and should be en route to Columbus and Washinton for final approval.

Announcement of entries in the All Star night league added another score to the commission's activities. The league will begin competition Tuesday night, June 2, and is composed of the following teams, Marion Steam Shovel Co., Gasco, Moores & Ross, Axe Funeral Home, Elks and K. of P. A complete schedule for the night league, which will play on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights at Lincoln park, is to be issued in the near future.

Commission members urged prospective and regular umpires to be present at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Y. The meeting, under the direction of Elmer Shaw, commission secretary, is for the purpose of assigning the officials for opening twilight games next week.

Those present at the meeting last night are L. E. Oberlander, Paul Rice, Robert O'Connell, Marion Hinklin, R. G. Smallwood and Secretary Elmer Shaw.

CRAWFORD CO. TEAM BEATS KIRKPATRICK

The elementary school track team of the Whetstone school, Crawford county, defeated the Kirkpatrick grade team, 39 to 51, in a dual meet at the Kirkpatrick school Wednesday afternoon. E. New Swimming Records Set At Amateur Meet

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 7—Two new national junior and three Ohio junior A. A. U. swimming records were on the books today, and Coach Mike Peppe of the Buckeye tank squad looked eagerly toward next year, as the result of a Olympic fund benefit carnival last night.

Ray Kay of the Detroit A. C. cracked 7-2 seconds off the 220-yard breast stroke event mark when he made it in 2:43.8, while Ralph Gilman of San Francisco's Olympic club, Stanford freshman, lowered the 220-yard free style record by 5.6 seconds with a 2:12.4 performance. Both marks were set on a "short course," 25 yards long.

The three state marks were set by Ohio State freshmen, which accounted for the broad smile on Peppe's face as he surveyed the results of the meet.

Bob Johnson of New Haven, Conn., grabbed the state A. A. U. 100-yard free-style event in 54.2 to beat the old mark by .3 seconds, and then came back to shave 1.8 seconds off the 150-yard medley to win in 1:39.5.

Dandy Sinkowitz of Detroit, another Buckeye frosh, finished on Johnson's heels in the free-style event, and then won the 100-yard back stroke with a 1:02.7 performance, cutting the old mark by 1.5 seconds.

Halina Taniska, of Detroit, won the 100-yard free style for women in 1:04.5, just nosing out little Pattie Taylor of Columbus, who is but 13.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

FRANK GABLER, Giants—His two relief pitching stopped Pirates' rally in ninth.

BUDDY HASSETT and JOHNNY COONEY, Dodgers—Led attack on Cincinnati hurlers with three hits each.

FRANK DEMAREE, Cubs—Connected with homer and two singles and drove in three runs against Bees.

CHARLEY GELBERT, Cardinals—Hit home run to provide Cards' margin in 3-2 victory over Phillies.

MONTE PEARSON, Yankees—Held Tigers to three hits and drove in four runs with homer and double.

JOHNNY MARCUM, Red Sox—Checked Browns with seven hits.

TED LYONS, White Sox—Limited Senators to eight hits and got three of Sox' 12 blows.

JOE HEARSON, HAL TROSKY and JOE VOSMIK, Indians—Their home runs played big part in 7-1 victory over Athletics.

RED BIRDS BREAK LOSING STREAK, WIN FROM MINNEAPOLIS

Lou Fette, St. Paul Veteran on Way to Comeback, Wins Fifth Straight Tilt.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 7—Lou Fette, veteran St. Paul righthander who finished the 1935 American Association with 10 victories and 17 defeats, is on his way to a big comeback.

Fette, one of the association's old reliables, lost many tough ones last year when the Saints faded after a fine start. Yesterday he outlasted Phil Page and Stew Bolen to whip Indianapolis, 7 to 4, for his fifth straight victory of the new campaign. He allowed nine hits, struck out two batsmen and did not issue a walk.

A 7 to 3 victory for Milwaukee over Toledo enabled the Brewers to move up from fourth to third place in the standing. Rudy York's terrific home run, his third in two days, was the big smash of a five-run rally in the eighth. Although clipped for 10 hits, Clyde Hatter was effective and became the first Brewer hurler in six games at home to go the distance. Milwaukee bunched most of its 10 hits off Sullivan and Hare.

Columbus' Red Birds broke a six-game losing streak by belting out 15 hits to defeat Minneapolis, 5 to 3. Mort Cooper kept 10 Miller hits apart, but was wild, issuing six passes and committing a wild pitch. He weakened in the ninth and Bob Klinger, going in after the first three batters to face Cooper reached base, did a neat bit of rescue work. Jack Winsett paced the Red Bird assault on Waller Tauscher, Roxy Ryan and Baker, clouting a home run with two on and a brace of singles.

Louisville won the first night game of the season at Kansas City, 8 to 1, behind Shaffer's steady pitching. He was rapped for 13 safe blows but was tough with runners on the paths. Brack featured the 13-hit Colonel attack with two triples.

CHURCH MEET ENDS TONIGHT

Sermon by Rev. Surbrook Will Close Ohio Conference of Holiness Ministers.

An evangelistic sermon tonight at 7:30 by the general superintendent, Rev. W. L. Surbrook of Detroit, Mich., will bring to a close the annual Ohio District Pilgrim Holiness Ministerial convention which opened Tuesday night, at the First church on Bennett street.

More than 125 ministers are here for the meeting, which is entirely devotional, with no business sessions.

Last night Rev. Surbrook delivered a sermon on "Seven Steps from Backsliding to Hell," from the text, Proverbs 14:14, "The backslider in heart shall be filled with his own ways: and a good man shall be satisfied from himself."

Rev. Surbrook outlined the steps as follows. First, the backslider generates an evil desire in his own heart for evil; second, he becomes self-willed, set in his own ways and assumes the attitude of a dictator; third, hardness of heart, condemning others for what he permits himself to do; fourth, a loss of spiritual vision and sweeping way of spiritual standards; fifth, presumptuous sin; sixth, desperate wickedness, for which he will not be admonished; seventh, a sleeping condition that leaves the victim with no keen sense of sin.

Morning Session

This morning's session consisted of devotional services and prayer conference, addresses on the trend of the age, and one of Rev. Surbrook's two addresses to the clergy.

Rev. L. R. Roberts of West Carrolton, superintendent of the Ohio district, gave a brief address last night, and Mrs. Surbrook sang. Devotionals included a prayer by Rev. E. E. Connin of Springfield. An altar call was issued preceding the benediction by Rev. Surbrook.

Rev. Roberts presided for the session yesterday afternoon which opened with a song service and a prayer which was offered by Rev Richard Powell of Chillicothe. The scripture lesson was read and commented on by Rev. Harold Osborne of Bowersville, who spoke of the vital connection between Christ and the church, picturing the church as powerless without Christ.

Music included songs by an evangelistic trio and by Miss Ima Jean Jacobs of Lima.

Discusses Present Trend

The trend of the age socially, educationally and religiously was pictured by Rev. D. C. Shearer of Nelsonville in his paper on "The Trend of the Age: Its Influence Upon the Church and How to Meet It." Rev. Richard Close of Cincinnati led the discussion which followed.

The business of soul saving is the greatest business in which one can be engaged, Rev. Bertha Kienbaum of Mason, O., told the group in her paper on "Preparing the Ground for the Coming Revival." The discussion which followed was led by Evangelist Maurice Klinger. Rev. F. C. Sanehoitz of Dayton proved by the Word of God that the arth shall have a reign of righteousness, when Christ shall be King and the prophecies of old shall be fulfilled. His paper was on "The Golden Age: Earth's Jubilee."

Rev. Charles P. Pridgen, pastor of the First church, led a round table discussion on Sunday school work. The discussion brought out the expression that Sunday school is a kindergarten for the church of tomorrow and that there is a great necessity of proper training of the children by teachers who have had a practical Christian experience.

Mrs. E. King, a returned missionary from Antigua in the British West Indies, gave a short talk on her experiences in organizing Sunday schools in the mission field.

C. OF C. HEARS MAYOR ON 3.2 MILL TAX LEVY

we are making to solve this problem.

"If we hadn't made these savings, I'd be ashamed to come before you and ask for a levy. I couldn't ask for it unless it had a lot of merit.

"If the levy is approved, we will continue our efforts at economy and aim for a surplus by the end of 1937, even though we will have to cut expenses $60,000 a year under the 1935 expenditures to get it.

"We want to put the city on a pay-as-you go basis—on a plane of financial respectability. There's no reason this can't be done with a city, just as it is done in private business.

"We've been asked what we will do if the levy fails. We'll do something. I believe we will solve the problem in some manner, but we doubt that we can solve it at less cost to the taxpayer than by this proposal. The solution is to raise funds some way, and I don't want to do it by borrowing. We could do what is known as refunding our bonded debt as it falls due, but this is vicious and isn't sound business.

"If we can get the money by means of a levy and save interest charges that would result from refunding bonds, I believe at the end of 1937 Marion can begin to see daylight again financially.

"Some may ask what future administrations might do. If we sell this program to the people, our successors hardly will dare tear it down."

Illustrates Point

Mayor Smith illustrated part of his talk with large charts. One showed that of the $172,000 to $175,000 the levy would raise in two years $63,376 would be allocated to payment of the 1935 operating deficit, $31,778 to payment of the city's contractual obligations, $33,848 to restore salaries to an 85 per cent basis instead of the present 55 per cent basis in 1936, $35,315 to maintain the salaries at an 85 per cent basis in 1937, and $16,000 for WPA projects.

Mayor Smith said the $63,375 figure set up for payment of 1935 bills was based on the assumption substantial discounts would be allowed by the city's creditors.

Taking up separately the different purposes for which the money would be used, Mayor Smith said there is no escape from payment of the 1935 deficit. "If we don't pay it voluntarily the creditors can sue the city and force the county auditor to levy enough taxes to pay the bills," he said.

Of the contractual obligations, he said, "They're valid contracts and we have to pay them in some way."

Commenting on the proposed salary basis of 85 per cent of full pay, he said the administration felt it would be unfair to ask officials and employes to work on a more reduced basis. The present 45 per cent pay cuts are too severe, he asserted.

WPA Program

The WPA projects that a portion of the levy money would help finance will enable the city to accomplish some work at a low cost that will "have to be done any way."

Economies effected this year include the elimination of one municipal court clerk, elimination of the police prosecutor, combination of the safety and service directorships and other savings, Mayor Smith said. In addition, a requisition system is being worked out that is expected to result in further savings and every effort is being made "in every department to save every nickel we can save," he said.

One of the charts shown at the meeting was set up to show the savings to the city through elimination of firemen's and policemen's pensions, one of the biggest economies effected this year. Mayor Smith said this chart, based on expectancy tables used by life insurance companies, and including allowance for five per cent interest compounded annually, showed the city would save $301,202 in the next 15 years through abolishment of police pensions and $226,390 through elimination of firemen's pensions. This, he said, assumes that all firemen and policemen would retire as soon as they became eligible.

"I feel it is fair to include five per cent interest on the savings because the city now is paying between five and six per cent interest on a total of $1,038,000 bonded indebtedness," he said.

Permanent Savings

"In addition to these savings, the administration has effected what can be called permanent savings that would amount to $143,714 in a 15-year period. Suppose this amount and the savings from pensions were to be applied to the city's bonded debt—it would be cut from $1,038,000 to $266,692.50 in 15 years. This shows how savings can add up."

The mayor pointed out that, in addition to other financial difficulties encountered at the first of the year, the administration received a certification from the county auditor that the city would get only $222,000 for operating purposes in 1936 whereas the certification for 1935 was $241,000. "I'm not sure we'll get all of the $222,000 in 1936, but it's the only figure we can use in planning our program," he said.

If the levy carries and the city avoids issuing more bonds, interest and debt charges gradually will become lighter, probably at the rate of around $3,000 a year, so that by 1938 the problem should be reduced to the place where the city can "begin to see daylight" in financing municipal operations, he said.

ZEPPELIN BOUND FOR U. S. SIGHTED OVER ATLANTIC

Ship Reports German Craft About 1,000 Miles from British Coast at Noon.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 7—The U. S. S. Champlain reported to the Mackay Radio Co., that it had sighted the Hindenburg at noon (Marion time) today.

At that time the airship, bound from Germany to the United States, was at 45 degrees, 46 minutes north latitude and 23 degrees, 20 minutes west longitude.

The position indicated the Hindenburg to be about 1,000 miles out from the English channel. The giant German airship averaging 75 miles an hour, struck out across the North Atlantic today on its first flight to North America.

The great Zeppelin passed Land's End, the cape of southwest England, at 6:05 a. m. (1:05 a. m., Marion time), and 40 minutes later crossed the Scilly islands off the English coast.

Bright sunshine and clear skies prevailed.

Many of the 51 passengers remained awake all night to see the airship fly over the mouth of the Rhine and later glimpse the Isle of Wight in the English channel off the southern coast of England, just as the sun rose.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, president of the Zeppelin Co., and traveling on the Hindenburg, said his favorite turn on the bridge was from midnight to 4 a. m. (Capt. Ernest Lehmann is actually in command of the Hindenburg but Dr. Eckener is his superior and can give orders).

The Zeppelin, bearing 107 persons, 3,300 pounds of freight and 20 sacks of mail, headed on a course over the English channel, southwest to the Azores and then west to Lakehurst, N. J.

So favorable were conditions for this pioneer flight of the Hindenburg, opening a projected series of voyages, that a record trip might be made. The Zeppelin was expected originally to reach Lakehurst Saturday afternoon.

The luxurious 818-foot ship proceeded swiftly, smoothly, almost noiselessly on its journey after the delayed departure from Friedrichshafen last night at 9:30 p. m. (3:30 p. m., Marion time).

The serious drain on the gold resources of the Bank of France continued in the week-ended May 2 with an amount equivalent to about $77 544 000 leaving the institution's vaults
